WHERE EVERY PERFORMANCE COUNTS

As I write, the SAC summer campers have departed, the prefects are back, preparing to welcome new boys after the Labour Day weekend, and teachers are returning after a well-deserved break, hurrying through the hallways on their way to labs or classrooms where they have only a few days to get ready before they are submerged in a new term.

I like the feeling of expectation and a new beginning. This year there is the added pleasure of knowing that the School is in excellent shape as the new academic year approaches: a faculty which is harmonious as well as impressively able, Old Boys enthusiastic in support of the College, and students whose sense of fun and involvement in innumerable activities remain undiminished while they also push St. Andrew's into the first echelon of academic achievement.

Indeed, our students' most recent academic record was undoubtedly impressive, and we are proud of their achievement. Yet, I also experience particular satisfaction with students below the level of the high-fliers who take full advantage of what St. Andrew's has to offer to realize their personal potential and ambitions. Realizing potential is, after all, the very cornerstone of a good education.

I came here a decade ago in the firm belief that a great school is one where every performance counts, be it athletic, artistic or intellectual. For, education at the highest level, I am convinced, is a matter of treating students as individuals and of providing a nurturing environment in which their minds, hearts and talents can develop and expand.

One of my priorities therefore was to create centres of excellence to ensure that the threefold ideal that sums up this School – open minds, compassionate hearts and imaginative spirits – flourished and was fully compatible with being in the vanguard of academic progress. I have not been disappointed.

A school that last year won seven CISAA championships and graduated 79 Ontario scholars can properly take pleasure in its all-round performance. Not all our performances, however, can be measured in league standings or mathematical tables, though many would be highly rated if they were.

Our Cadet Corps with its superb Pipes and Drums is, arguably, the finest anywhere; the School's musical reputation has never stood higher; and our theatrical productions rival some of the very best that the professional theatre has to offer.

Debating has also reached new peaks of success as have filmmaking and the visual arts.

Sticking firmly to our mission – to cater to the complete man: body, mind and spirit, accounts, I believe, for the characteristic Andrean capacity to punch well above its weight in numerous rings: sporting, performing, debating, academic. The sheer consistency of paradoxically diverse achievement at this School is quite extraordinary and the one thing, above all else, that makes St. Andrew's "not an ordinary place."

Another characteristic peculiar to St. Andrew's is that more often than not our finest scholars are also our star athletes, lead actors, musicians, artists and debaters. It's commonplace to see boys run off the football field, into the dining hall, and then onstage for rehearsal, to band practice or to a debaters meeting. This is not a common phenomenon by any means. There are few schools in the world where this could or would happen. Seeing it in operation at St. Andrew's is a profound lesson in what constitutes a first-rate education and is worth a dozen lectures about its necessity.

One hundred and eight years ago, our founder, the Reverend Dr. George Bruce, expressed misgivings for the emerging public school system to found a "small school for boys" with a challenging mission: "to minister to the whole child in all aspects of his being... advantages that can not be very well secured by other private schools or under the ordinary school system." I am confident he would feel that we were fulfilling his vision. A

FOUNDATION TRUSTEES

John Wood '70

John has over 25 years of experience in the investment industry and has garnered a reputation as an innovator and business builder in the Canadian investment community. He participated in the founding of 20/20 Financial Inc., and as CEO, led its rapid growth to $4 billion under management. He replicated this success in building Financial Concepts Group, and Maxxum Fund Management Ltd.

John is a Director of several private companies and is passionate about giving back to the community. He serves as Chairman of the Canadian Olympic Committee's (COC) Investment Committee, and is also Chairman of the Joseph H. M. Wood Foundation.

In 1976, he won an Olympic Silver Medal for Canada in Canoeing at the 1976 Montreal Olympics. The same year he was presented with the Governor General's Medal for his achievements. He went on to win a bronze medal in sailing at the 1979 Pan Am games.

John is a graduate of McMaster University. He studied his CFA at the University of Virginia and is a Fellow of The Canadian Securities Institute and is licensed for Investment Counsel & Portfolio Management. John resides in Oakville with his wife Deborah and has four children. He remains active in the world of athletics and serves in numerous community fundraisers.

Peter W. Anderson

Peter W. Anderson is Chief Executive Officer of CI Investments Inc., Canada's third-largest investment fund company, overseeing assets in excess of $58 billion.

Since joining CI in 1997, Peter has overseen significant growth at the company, including the acquisition and integration of five other fund companies. During his tenure, CI has become known for offering the industry's most diverse selection of investment products and for having the most funds with the top five-star rating from Morningstar Canada.

Peter is also Executive Vice-President of CI Financial Income Fund. He joined CI in 1997 from ScotiaMcLeod Inc., where he was Managing Director, Retail Sales. He holds a business degree from the University of New Brunswick. Peter and his wife Brigitte have two sons who attend St. Andrew's: Michael in grade 11 and David in grade 7.

Steven Creber '90

Steven attended St. Andrew's from 1985-1990. During his time at the school, he played First Football, First Hockey and First Rugby. In addition to this, he was a Prefect and Major in the Cadet Corps, and in his final year was the winner of the prestigious Macdonald Medal. Upon graduating from SAC, Steven attended Huron College at the University of Western Ontario where he received his Honours BA.

He started his career in the financial services industry when he joined Midland Walwyn as an Investment Advisor. Steven is now with CIBC Wood Gundy in their Thornhill branch and holds the designation of Canadian Investment Manager (CIM) and is a Fellow of the Canadian Securities Institute (FCSI), the institute's highest designation.

Steven has stayed active within the Andrean alumni and was President of the SAC Association from 2000-2004. He resides in Toronto with his wife Lara and their two sons Grayden 4, and Lochlan 2.

SIMULATING INTERNATIONAL DIPLOMACY

The first year only eight boys were interested. The second year there were 13. But during the 2006-2007 school year, 28 St. Andrew's boys joined up for the Model United Nations program, which culminated in the annual National High School Model UN Simulation held in New York City in March.

"Interest soared this year," says Assistant Headmaster Courtenay Shrimpton, who has facilitated this activity for the three years SAC has offered it. "Word has gotten out from boys who made the trip the first two years that it's an awesome experience."

'Awesome' is certainly the right word – five days in New York joining 2,000 other student delegates from countries all over the world, and actually sitting in the main chambers of the United Nations. In many cases at the very table of the country they are representing.

The National High School Model United Nations Conference in New York is just one of many United Nations "simulations" held at universities all over the world during the school year. Run entirely by university students – mostly political science majors – the organization describes its mission as "simulating international diplomacy with the mandate of educating high school delegates from around the globe about real-world solutions to some of the most eminent crises that threaten the political stability of our increasingly-globalized society."

In short, students represent assigned countries, take up assigned causes, research them in depth and argue them in front of dozens and sometimes hundreds of other delegates in meeting rooms or on the floor of the UN.

"I FELT I WAS IN THE ACTUAL PROCESS WHERE THE UN TRIES TO CHANGE EVENTS IN THE WORLD," SAID RADISSEN RAMOUTAR, A GRADE 12 STUDENT FROM TRINIDAD AND WELL KNOWN AS AN SAC DEBATER. "I WAS AMAZED BY THE FACT THE UN HAS THIS MUCH INFLUENCE IN THE WAY THE WORLD AND INDIVIDUAL COUNTRIES WORK. I HAD MY DOUBTS BEFORE I WENT AS TO WHAT THIS WAS GOING TO MEAN, BUT AFTERWARDS I'D SAY I'D LOVE TO BE PART OF THE UN."

New York City and the United Nations building are the backdrop for a program that challenges SAC students to prepare and behave like actual delegates.

Courtenay Shrimpton says preparation for the March trip begins in October and from then on the volunteer delegates from St. Andrew's meet weekly to prepare. "With 28 students from one school, the organizers divided us into two countries, Nicaragua and The Philippines. That worked well, because the boys were able to debate each other during the year."

Students representing each country are divided into UN committees and informed of topics they must prepare to defend or debate in March. For example, the Economic and Financial Committee needed to spend their year researching their country's position on two topics: trade liberalization and financing development in corrupt regimes. There were 25 committees, each with two topics. Delegates prepare a research paper that is graded by a university student overseeing their committee. They learn about backroom dealing, forming coalitions with other countries to increase their power, and they learn about the tremendous influence of the superpowers within their region.

The opening and closing sessions of the event take place on the floor of the UN and students sit in the actual chairs of their designated country. The rest of the sessions are held in meeting places in the Hilton New York where all 2,000 students are expected to stay. The only non-student involved in the process is the keynote speaker at the opening. All others involved in mounting this mammoth event are university students from around the world.

"Some of our boys do an inordinate amount of research, while others work on the debating side of things," says Courtenay. "One of my more important jobs is to grill them mercilessly on their topics a few days before we leave. It sometimes isn't pretty, but after that they realize how thoroughly they need to know their subject before they can stand up and present a position effectively."

"But I think what surprises them more than anything is to learn that the wheeling and dealing and real work goes on not within the formal UN chambers, but in the cafeteria and the hallways and in suites. No matter where they are they have to have their material ready should opportunity arise. And to do well they have to be prepared to approach someone they don't know and engage them. It takes courage and confidence."

"WE HAD TO THINK AND SPEAK UNDER PRESSURE," RAAFEH RAHIM, A GRADE 12 STUDENT FROM HONG KONG SAID. "WE HAD TO RESEARCH SPECIFIC ASPECTS OF OUR COUNTRY AND OUR TOPIC, THEN INTERNALIZE THE MATERIAL SO WE COULD PRESENT WHAT WE KNEW WHENEVER WE WERE CALLED UPON. IN AN ENVIRONMENT THAT INCLUDES SO MANY SKILLED AND WELL SPOKEN PEOPLE WHO ARE NOT AFRAID TO ENGAGE EACH OTHER, IF YOU'RE WILLING TO GET UP AND PUT YOURSELF ON THE LINE, IT'S EASY TO SEE YOUR SOCIAL SKILLS IMPROVE!"

Raafeh Rahim says this experience was invaluable in helping him develop his organizing and communicating skills.

And then there was New York. The group made a point of getting to the city a couple days early so the boys could see some of the sites and experience some of the happenings, from Broadway plays and an NBA basketball game, to the Rockefeller Centre and the Museum of Natural History.

Future plans see the program continuing to grow this year. "The word is out that this program is a must do for all those students interested in world affairs," says Courtenay. "I expect this year's group to be the largest and most successful delegation yet!" A

IN CENTRAL AMERICA

A view from across the city square in the historical centre of Guatemala City

SAC students look out over Lake Atitlán with tourguide in the background. Lake Atitlán is outside Guatemala City and surrounded by three volcanic peaks.

“REPRESENTING PANAMA IN THE PAN AMERICAN HEALTH ORGANIZATION WAS A VERY REWARDING EXPERIENCE,” SAID SCOTT GENIN '07. “I BELIEVE THAT LEARNING ABOUT THE POLICIES AND IDEAS OF DIFFERENT COUNTRIES IS IMPORTANT TO UNDERSTANDING THE WORLD THAT WE LIVE IN.”

St. Andrew's sent a delegation of six students to Guatemala City from March 30-April 1 for the annual “Summit of the Americas”. This was the sixth year St. Andrew's participated in the conference. Each student acted as a delegate from a member state in simulated committee sessions of the Organization of American States (OAS), debating current issues and working with other student delegates to create resolutions to address those issues.

The Harvard Association Cultivating Inter-American (HACIA) Democracy's annual government simulation conference is organized by undergraduates of Harvard University, and is the foremost forum for the hemisphere's youth to focus on issues facing democracies in the region. The conference exposes talented students to domestic and international models of democracy, and provides them with the opportunity to explore creative solutions to the problems facing states in this area of the world.

Scott Genin '07 is to be congratulated on receiving a Best Delegate award this year for his contribution to the committee discussions of the Pan American Health Organization simulation.

Members of last year's SAC delegation also included: Robert Hambley '07, Colin Murphy '07, William Samson-Doel '07, Thomas Tripodi '08 and Matt Wolfenden '07 and represented the only group from Canada. OUR "DOWN UNDER" EXCHANGE

@vcn:zipper
Chris Drok and Tom Bransden in Canada,
Australian exchange students

For the past two years, St. Andrew's has forged a wonderful rapport with two schools on opposite coasts of Australia: Christ Church Grammar School in Perth and Goulburn Valley Grammar School in Shepparton, just north of Melbourne.

The exchange began between Jeff Moran, Assistant Headmaster of Goulburn Valley Grammar School and our Assistant Head Courtenay Shrimpton who discussed the merits of exchanges over email. Goulburn Valley had been sending girls to BSS for a few years and wanted a wonderful and equivalent experience for their boys. One year later Shane McGurk of Christ Church Grammar School came knocking and inquired about bringing the boys only school, Christ Church Grammar School into the mix.

Students join us from Australia two or three times a year and split their time equally between a boarding experience and a home stay in order to have the complete Andean experience of day and boarding life. St. Andrew's students travel from late February until the first week of May in order to minimize the disturbances on a very heavy and packed St. Andrew's calendar. Two years of exchanges have now taken place and the stories of adventure and experience have been outstanding.

Grade 11 student Bryn Jones got back in early April from a five week stint studying at Christ Church Grammar School and had nothing but good things to say about life in Australia. "While you were experiencing negative temperatures and blizzards, I was wearing shorts walking to and from class in 44 degree temperatures," reported Bryn with a smile. "Their #2 uniform consists of khaki shorts and a striped button down shirt."

Classes in Australia were just getting underway in February when the SAC students arrived, as the summer holidays take place over December and January, opposite to our way of thinking here in Ontario. It was therefore a perfect time to visit, and ease into the new routine.

While in Perth, Bryn lived in a dormitory and enjoyed visiting the beach, which was a mere 20 minutes away. He also explored the art galleries and parks of Perth, including King's Park. He saw kangaroos, heard about the many dangerous animals, insects and reptiles that can kill you in and around Australia, and found the Aussies to be exceptionally friendly and fun in the most isolated state capital city in the world.

James Hogg '08 (right) surfing the Gold Coast in Australia

James Hogg '08 in Australia

Meanwhile, Chris Drok and Tom Bransden, both grade 10 students at Christ Church, had accompanied Bryn back to Aurora for the start of their six week exchange in Canada. Still a bit blurry-eyed from the 12 hour time difference, their initial observations were as follows:

"It's cold here," said Chris who has never travelled outside of Australia. "Seeing snow has definitely been a highlight." And the toilets flush differently," added Tom. "They are automatic, you don't even need to push a button."

In the bigger picture, they also noted the average class size is much smaller at St. Andrew's with an average size of 17 versus Christ Church's average size of 28 students. SAC classes are also much longer – 70 minutes in length, whereas their classes are closer to 45 minutes long, and they have six classes a day with a five day cycle.

Chris, who is a day student in Australia, stayed in Memorial House for part of his stay, while Tom, who was born in England and has lived in Indonesia, is a boarding student back home and fit right into Sifton House. Both boys also spent much of their time staying with the Tripps and Chappells, two local day boy families.

"Canadians are incredibly friendly," said Chris. "And there is much more space here at St. Andrew's than at our school." Both Australians were looking forward to a weekend of skiing in Mt. Tremblant when we first met, as part of the weekend program. While excited about skiing, they were hoping to return to some warmer weather following the Easter weekend as neither one of them had played rugby in the snow before.

When I checked back in with Chris and Tom right before they returned to Perth later in May, they were much more alert this time around and extremely gracious and thankful for the opportunity to visit our school. The Tripp family had brought them to Niagara Falls and Canada's Wonderland and they had also been to see a Raptors' and Blue Jays' game. They had both made fine additions to the U16 Rugby team, claiming it to be of "similar calibre" to what they are used to back home.

Tom enjoyed learning Canadian history and felt there were a lot of similarities to Australian history. Not used to boarding, Chris really missed his family and dogs.

Both boys look forward to returning to their normal routines, visiting with friends and doing what they typically do in the hotter weather.

They promised, however, to recommend this experience to other boys at their school. "Lots of people want to come to Canada," they both said. And they will do their best to encourage their mates "down under" to come to St. Andrew's! A

KIM SILLCOX

Chris Drok and Tom Bransden
at Niagara Falls, Canada

Quote from Marion Hogg, mother of James Hogg '08 (and wife of Michael Hogg '72).
The Hoggs hosted three students from Goulbourn Valley School in the fall of 2007 and then James traveled to Shepparton in February 2007 for six weeks.

There was some “buzz” put out about the Australian exchange and James is very social so had met the boys from the previous exchange. There was some vague talk in the household about the possibility of participating in the exchange, and before I knew it we had three boys on our doorstep looking very dazed and confused – not to mention tired, having missed their connection in LA through no fault of their own. Tom, Kieran and Marty were great boys and we enjoyed every moment of their stay here. Kieran boarded at school and seemed to enjoy that experience, while Marty stayed with Bryn Jones '09 and family. Most weekends found them in residence, at our home, exploring the city or meeting up with their female classmates (Goulbourn Valley School is coed) who were attending Bishop Strachan, or off on an organized expedition somewhere. We took the boys to Niagara Falls, and for a long weekend to Algonquin Park, and to Ottawa. They also managed to see Montreal and Mont Tremblant with Stephan Noel's family. We took them to a hockey game as well.

Each of them had a great sense of adventure and independence, and we certainly never felt that we had to entertain them or fill their time in any way.

They kept themselves busy pretty much all the time and were so responsible that I never really worried about them too much (well – they are 17 year old boys so I did patrol them as much as possible). They got themselves all done up for the semi-formal and invited their Australian counterparts from the city and had a really fun evening “out on the town”. They cried when they had to go home, and we cried too because we had truly enjoyed having them here, filling our home with their energy and enthusiasm.

When James traveled to Shepparton last spring, his most indelible impression was that of the drought. One hundred percent of Victoria had been drought declared and water was trucked into residences, such as the Davey household where James stayed. The Shepparton area is the orchard/fruit belt of Australia and is in a state of acute emergency with up to seventy percent decline in river flows. When I commented and commended the boys on the quickness of their showers the first day they arrived (they were so fast – less than a minute each – we are on a septic system so I notice things like that) they told us about their water situation and how dire it is. With good humour they also indicated that they would adapt to our ways very quickly!

The Davey family with whom James stayed were wonderful to him and their situation was a country one similar to our own with dogs, cats and horses, so it was a perfect fit all round. Shepparton is about two hours from Melbourne, and from what I gather is a town perhaps the size of Collingwood. Goulbourn Valley Grammar School is coed – an aspect of the whole experience that James found particularly enjoyable. I'm not sure how much formal learning went on while James was at school – probably the biggest downside of the exchange program. But from surfing on the Gold Coast, to watching “footie”, to seeing his first Grand Prix race, James had the time of his life. He travelled north to the Great Barrier Reef to visit with his cousin who is an artist living and working in Cairns. He and Tom went out on a dive boat and snorkeled on the Reef. He saw crocodiles and kangaroos. He smelled the gum trees, which are to Australians what maple leaves are to Canadians. And without a doubt he has made friendships that will last a lifetime. Would James recommend the experience? In a heartbeat. A

Hot on the heels of grade 11 student Ryan Cole's tremendous top ten overall finish at the World Individual Debating and Public Speaking Championships last April in Cape Town, South Africa, and numerous other victorious finishes achieved this past school year,

St. Andrew's Debating and Public Speaking teams BRING HOME THE GOLD!

At the third and final Fulford competition of the year held at De La Salle College in Toronto, SAC pulled off an extremely rare trifecta with wins in both Senior and Junior team events (for the first time in 21 years in either category). SAC also won its first ever Coaches' Cup whereby our combined rankings across three Fulford tournaments this past school year were the highest among all 21 participating Ontario Independent Schools. By year's end the school proudly displayed three trophies representing its Fulford debating achievements for the year.

Hearty congratulations to our skilled orators: Stewart Powell '07 and Ryan Cole '09 (senior team) and Adam Moryto '09 and Bobby McDonald '09 (junior team).

St. Andrew's debaters continued to prepare over the summer for this fall's IISPS (International Independent Schools' Public Speaking Competition) in Reading, England in October. As host of last year's competition, SAC is in the unique position of taking six students this year and competition will be tough as our debating students vie for the coveted six spots in late September. A

BACKGROUND ON THE FULFORD LEAGUE:

- established in 1948 by his widow in memory of George Fulford, distinguished Canadian jurist and senator who died in the late 1940s;
- for the first 30 years the Fulford League consisted of the original "Little Big Four" (St. Andrew's College, Upper Canada College, Trinity College School, and Bishop Ridley College) plus the University of Toronto Schools (UTS);
- in the late 70's two additional schools petitioned the league to be included: Appleby College and Lakefield College School;
- Andean Mr. Rupert Ray (SAC 1966-2001) was first official league president from 1980-1983, during which time membership grew from seven to 17 schools (today there are 21 Ontario independent school members) a period of quantum growth which brought in all the girls' and many of the coed schools;
- three tournaments per year in the fall, winter and spring;
- Junior (grades 9 & 10) trophy called the Bryan Jones Trophy, in memory of a Lakefield College teacher and debating coach who had shown himself to be a true friend of debate in the tradition of Senator Fulford;
- Senior (grades 11 & 12) trophy called Fulford League Senior Trophy; and
- Coaches' Cup awarded to the school that amasses highest overall rankings in two out of three Fulford tournaments in a school year.

In retirement, Rupert Ray continues to be as involved as ever in debating, at present as a Director and Governor of OSDU (the Ontario Student Debating Union). He has fond memories of the young men whom he coached during his years at St. Andrew's, as well as the students and coaches from the other schools who became friends. Our thanks go to Rupert Ray for this background on the Fulford.

Display of SAC's Debating Society's numerous awards won last year, including Senior Cup awarded to SAC for placing two teams in the highest ranking across three tournaments and the Ostrich Egg with engraved stand presented to Ryan Cole for placing 9th overall at the World Individual Debating and Public Speaking Championships in South Africa.

Retires with Universal Respect

When Roy McMurtry '50 retired last May after 10 years as Ontario Chief Justice, The Globe & Mail wrote:

"About one point, however, there is little disagreement: Chief Justice McMurtry's extraordinarily successful record. His combination of administrative acumen, devotion to the ideas and reputation of the judicial system, and his ability to bring people together are considered precisely the qualities that a chief justice should embody."

That's extremely high praise from Canada's respected national newspaper.

No one who knows him as a great and long-time friend of the College is surprised by these words. He is a most respected Andrean. He was a Prefect and a member of First Hockey and Football. He was President of the SAC Association from 1966-68, as well as a Governor those two years and again from 1993-97. He was the Guest Speaker at the College's 100th Anniversary Prize Day in 1999. He delivered a stirring eulogy in Chapel in October 2005 at a memorial service for another great Andrean, former Premier of Newfoundland,

Frank Moores '51.

His father, Roland Roy McMurtry graduated in the class of 1919. A graduate of the University of Toronto and the York University Law School, Roy is no stranger to high-profile postings. He served as Ontario Attorney General and Solicitor General in the William Davis government in the early 1970s, later as Canadian High Commissioner to Britain, and as Commissioner of the Canadian Football League.

He is also a very accomplished landscape painter, with several works hanging in the College.

Not one to fade away even at the Chief Justice's mandatory retirement age of 75, Roy has accepted a position with prominent Toronto law firm Gowling Henderson Lafleur LLP. With several offers to choose from, his selection of Gowling is also a reflection of a man committed to social change. Gowling is renowned for its support of community service and pro bono law, and for this reason, he told The Globe & Mail, "it was the only law firm I was interested in."

"I am in a position to help young lawyers find opportunities to get trial experience through pro bono work... In my first 10 years of practice I was in court more than most lawyers today have been in their entire career."

Chief Justice Roy McMurtry

High Flyer Expands Horizons

When he was at St. Andrew's, Jeff Lewis '95 flew a Cessna for fun. Now he flies a 1960s L29 "Delfin" fighter jet – for fun and an Air Canada Embraer 190 – for fun. He hopes in a year or two to be flying a Russian built MiG fighter. It seems all of Jeff's flying is for fun, though of course he gets paid for much of it ("Air Canada pays me to fly," he says. "That's just unbelievable.") It's easy to see what Jeff's passion is.

After seven years at St. Andrew's where he was First Hockey goalie and a piper, he spent three years at the Royal Military College of Science at Cranfield University in Shrivenham, England where he graduated with an honours degree in Aeromechanical Systems Engineering. His flying career has seen him fly more than 70 different types of aircraft in a variety of endeavours, including aircraft delivery as a flying freelancer, and a seven-year stint with Noranda flying everything from Boeing 737's to corporate jets. He has amassed more than 7,000 hours in the air.

On the 'side,' Jeff is also owner of Terraquip, a world-wide distributor of heavy construction and material handling equipment with a dozen employees operating out of Concord, Ontario. This business has grown slowly since it started in 2001, but continues to develop, with plans for higher visibility and expansion in the next year.

As if that doesn't keep him busy enough, Jeff recently earned his Captain's stripes with Air Canada – one of his life goals – after only 18 months of flying for the airline. He flies about 80 hours a month, though as a new Captain he is on-call to take flights on short notice. ("The phone rings at 5 a.m. and I need to be at the airport at 7 a.m. for a four-day trip!")

The fighter jets are the 'extreme' side of Jeff's passion. The L29 Delfin is a light attack fighter and advanced jet trainer that was active from the 1960s until the mid-1980s, and saw action in Eastern Europe, the Soviet Union, and throughout Africa. Jeff recently bought the aircraft with a view to flying it on the North American air show circuit – another life goal. While he lives in Mississauga, the Delfin will stay at the airport in Waterloo, a much more accessible and less expensive airport than Pearson in Toronto. Now he has his eye on a Russian MiG fighter with the same goal in mind. "I love talking about aircraft and showing people aircraft, so the idea of flying these vintage machines at air shows is really exciting to me," he says.

Where does he get this time to, well, do what he wants? "I have a business partner who runs day-to-day operations at Terraquip," he notes. "Recently, Air Canada has been asking me to do some special projects for them to solve engineering problems. I can still fly when I want, but this increases my flexibility and gives me the opportunity to work towards a management position with Air Canada. That's become another big goal."

Jeff's had no time to marry or have a family yet, but that too remains another life goal – if he can stay on the ground long enough.

Learning the Industry Puzzle

Former Head Prefect Jason LaMarche-Hunderup '93 wasn't entirely sure when he was at St. Andrew's that he would enter the family business. The family had moved to King City and begun breeding and raising horses at Norse Ridge Farm in 1988 when he was in Grade 8. He spent summers working on the farm, but he loved rugby at the School and went to Queen's to study Physical Education and Health. He helped Stuart Swan coach First Rugby at SAC during these years. However, this avid interest in sports and anatomy didn't seem to point in a professional direction, so he enrolled in Equine Business Management at the Royal Agricultural College at Cirencester in Gloucestershire, England, graduating with an MBA at the top of his class in 2004. Clearly, the dye had been cast.

Jason returned to King City and is now Manager of the Breeding Division at Norse Ridge. It is a growing business that cares for up to 140 horses during the racing off-season.

Norse Ridge handles both thoroughbreds and racing American Quarter Horses, providing breeding services to some of the country's leading stables. Their Quarter Horse stallion, "Black Moons Arising" was the leading sire in Canada in 2006.

"It's a busy place," says Jason of the breeding end of the business. "We have mares coming and going steadily during the breeding season from January to June. We have our own stallions and mares, and foal out mares for clients that are either sent to Kentucky or are bred back to stallions that we stand at the farm. Mares foal mostly at night, and they have to be attended, so with the exception of a few of the summer months, I don't have much time for anything outside of the farm."

His summer 'slow time' may change soon as Jason is developing greater interest in the training and racing end of the business. "I'd like to get my trainer's licence and train on a small scale to learn that side of the business," he says. "But I'm also getting more interested in land management, conservation and the agricultural side of things. It's another piece of the industry puzzle and I figure the more information I have, the better I'll be able to make decisions in future."

The family ties are strong for Norse Ridge. Jason's sister Jacinda died tragically at age 18 in a car accident a few years after the family bought the farm. It was her love of horses that inspired the family to continue in the business and develop it in her memory.

With Jason's growing love for all aspects of the industry and his determination to understand all of its nuances, Norse Ridge Farms Limited appears in good hands for a long time to come.

A Career In Music

In early 1969, after leaving McGill University with a mix of economics and assorted courses, Ian Terry '66 – then a drummer – decided he wanted to be around music. “I’m not sure I had the talent to play professionally,” he says, “but in those days everyone had a guitar and wanted to record.” So Ian started recording them.

By 1976 he had his own staff and studio, Studio Tempo, which he ran until the time came to sell in 2002. During those years he developed almost unparalleled expertise and worked with artists ranging in style from David Bowie and Celine Dion, to Oscar Peterson and Diana Krall, earning numerous Gold, Platinum and Double Platinum Records and five Juno nominations along the way.

Surprisingly for a recording engineer who has lived in Montreal, New York and the American mid-west, the highlight of his career was not an artist or a recording project. It was producing a research paper for the Quebec government in 1993-94 on the state of the recording industry in Southeast Asia. “The research entailed many trips to selected Southeast Asian countries visiting 161 facilities,” he recalls. “It was exciting to explore the culture and to work at a different level of the industry rather than focusing on a single recording project.”

In recent years Ian has continued freelance work in what looked like a gradual glide towards retirement. However, in 2003, Denny Christianson, the Head of Music at Humber College in Toronto called him with an idea to put together a unique Bachelor of Applied Music (Contemporary Music) Degree. The third and fourth years of the degree entail courses that teach musicians how to make and produce their own recordings (the program received 1,400 applicants last year, of which only 100 were accepted). So last April, at a time in life when most people are considering retirement, Ian accepted the full-time position of Professor of Music Production in the Faculty of Creative and Performing Arts at Humber College. The icing on the cake is that he walks into a recently completed state-of-the-art recording and production facility at Humber that he helped design and build as part of the new program.

Ian and his wife Wai-Lin spent much of the summer orchestrating their move from Albuquerque, New Mexico to Toronto. He will continue to record as a freelancer while embarking on his new career.

Ian Terry

St. Andrew's College bid farewell to four longtime faculty and staff members in the spring of 2007, three of whom are members of the exclusive 25-year club.

Stephen Treasure retired after 31 years of duties and contributions that were incredibly varied. Though he was hired by Headmaster Tom Hockin in 1976 to teach grade 12 Canadian Literature, he subsequently taught English to almost every grade for the next 22 years. During that period he also taught art. In the late 1980s and 1990s, he, Geoff Smith, librarian Kate Carson and the late Aubrey Foy began what would eventually become the Information Technology department, experimenting with and developing the on-campus use of computer networks in communications, database access and other forms of online research. Stephen and his colleagues were well ahead of their time as they ushered in the modern era of the networked school. Later, Steve would teach grade 9 Computer Science.

He spent five years as Assistant Housemaster in Macdonald House and six as Housemaster of Memorial. He ran the photography club, produced the school newspaper, edited the Review for 10 years, led countless school trips to see the antiquities of Egypt, Greece, France and Italy, and played the clarinet with the school's Jazz band. He coached soccer, hockey, cricket and football. He is a superb classical pianist, and even tried his hand at the bagpipes.

What will this Renaissance man do for an encore? Well, after serving as Librarian here for some years, he plans to continue some of his off-campus duties in Library work for a few more months. Then he and wife Chris – they were married in the chapel in 1976 and sons Tristan (20) and Julian (23) grew up on campus – will retire to Prince Edward County and have a good think about that.

25-Year Club Goodbyes

Carol Rose-Kudelka

Another member of the 25-year club, Carol joined St. Andrew's in 1981. She had worked part-time for Dr. Knowles, the school's physician at the time and when he needed a nurse to fill in until the end of the term, he asked her to come on board. Two years later she was promoted to Head Nurse. Carol was active in the Ladies Guild Executive for 18 years and was a key promoter of social awareness programs for the boys. She found that to be very rewarding as she worked closely with the mothers to help address the boys' most pressing needs.

For 26 years, Carol always put the boys first and remembers fondly the day Pinball Clemons, former Argonauts football star and current Coach of the Argos came to speak to the students. "Bob Arril, the Chaplain at the time put it perfectly: Pinball walked into the Bedard Gymnasium 5'9" and left 6' tall. He told the boys to do their very best and to believe in their own abilities."

Carol stays in contact with many of the boys she cared for as students, and attended the wedding of Daniel Melville '99 outside Ocho Rios in Jamaica last Fall. She has been studying at Emmanuel College and will be the Parish Nurse at Aurora United Church. She has moved off campus, where she resided for the past nine years, and is excited about her new home – a loft in downtown Aurora where she will live with her two dogs. When Carol is not working, she plans on spending time with her two daughters and four granddaughters who live in the area.

After 25 years at St. Andrew's, Alan Halstead has been given a unique opportunity to broaden his horizons. An inveterate traveller and consummate educator, it seems more than fitting that Alan was offered and accepted the position of Headmaster of the Senior School at the British International School in Kiev, Ukraine. The position came up rather suddenly in the spring and Alan uprooted his and his daughter's life on very short notice to move to Kiev to complete the spring term there.

Alan joined the School in September 1982. He taught Geography, Geology, Spanish and Guidance/Career studies over his career at St. Andrew's and was Head of Geography from 1987-2006. He introduced the Geomatics course and was an early advocate for and user of the computer network. He brought his love of travel to his students, leading many trips to such exotic locations as Spain, Cuba, Mexico and Venezuela. He spent 17 years as a Flavelle Duty Master. He coached First Soccer, as well as cricket and rugby, ran the House League program for 10 years and introduced table tennis to the school.

Most recently, as Supervisor of the fledgling Guided Learning Centre, Alan was instrumental in helping to turn this program into an invaluable tool for helping boys complete overdue assignments.

He also taught night school Spanish for ten years in York Region.

Alan left several heartfelt messages to friends and colleagues, and sent this one to The Andean:

My proudest possession is the gold long service pin that Ted presented to me at the break time staff meeting on that last day. My fondest memories are of all the friends I have made and I know that somewhere, somehow we will meet again. I do subscribe to the sentiment that "parting is such sweet sorrow". It has to hurt so that you know that you are leaving something meaningful, but at the same time you must go forward.

I cannot end without thanking my daughter, Claire. I had never really recognized or understood the depth of feeling she has for SAC until my last Monday morning and the chapel assembly she and Jamie Walker '07 led to celebrate my departure. To walk back down the aisle with her and onto the quadrangle was an emotional and fitting way for me to say farewell to the Andean community.

Mike Hillick retired in June 2007 after managing Food Services for St. Andrew's for the past 18 years. According to Mike, he happened upon St. Andrew's quite by accident while working at Peel Memorial Hospital with 15 female dieticians. You might say he was in need of a change when a friend suggested he forward his resume to Eastwood Food Services, formerly run by two Old Boys David

'68 and John Cross '71. After the interview he was told they didn't have anything big enough for him to manage, but he received a call shortly after to come interview with former Headmaster, Bob Bedard. Two hours into the interview, Mike had landed the job. He promoted Luigi D'ambrosio as Head Chef the following summer.

His rapport with the boys has always been his priority and something he continued to cultivate every day. Mike remembers students from years gone by with a smile: Rory Manning '92, Michael Foy '97, Michael Lamb '93, Matthew '92 and Brian Chisholm '00, the Etherington brothers – Paul '95, Sean '94 and Mark '92. The list goes on and on. Mike also fostered a long lasting relationship with the Ladies Guild, and remembers Joan Rogers, wife of long time Board member Dem Rogers '58.

Mike worked closely with Jim Herder '64 and the Advancement team on all kinds of special events and praises this group in particular for always giving him accurate numbers in advance of every event. In addition to feeding 500 plus hungry young men, some of the many events Mike and his team catered over the years included: New Parent Receptions and Orientation, Homecoming, St. Andrew's Night, Donor Receptions, Prize Day and countless weddings including those of more than a dozen faculty members.

"It's true what Will Scoular wrote, that this is a special place," said Mike. "It is a family which has supported me 110 percent. I brought it so far and now it is time to pass on the reins. I will miss it."

WITH A TAX SAVING OPPORTUNITY!

In the Spring of 2006, the Canadian Government announced a new budget which provides an exciting, tax-saving opportunity for donors. Effective May 2006, there is no longer any capital gains tax on gifts of publicly-traded shares, bonds, mutual fund units and employee stock options donated to registered charities.

Gifts of publicly-traded securities have become an increasingly popular way of supporting SAC and we are pleased that you will receive even greater tax benefits for your generous support.

To illustrate: You purchase shares at a price of $10,000 and the fair market value of the stock has risen to $15,000. When you donate the stock to SAC, the Foundation will issue you a tax receipt in the amount of $15,000. You will no longer be required to pay tax on the $5,000 gain. Previously, 25% of the gain would have been taxable.

We hope this exciting news will encourage you to consider making a gift of securities to help provide unique educational opportunities for the students of St. Andrew's. Such a gift could be part of your annual contribution, support for a capital building project, or perhaps a family endowed fund.

Making a gift this way is easy. Please consult your tax advisor or call the Advancement Office if you are considering this vehicle to support the school.

Please contact Jim Herder, Director of Advancement at 905-727-3178 ext. 237 or jim.herder@sac.on.ca.

ANNUAL REPORT

HEADMASTER'S PRIZE DAY 2007 SPEECH

It is a privilege for me to open the 2007 Prize Day Ceremonies and most important for you to hear about the outstanding achievements of our students over the course of this successful year.

I am certain that you will agree with me when I say that the most important thing in life is the safety and security of our children. As a residential school, we think about this each and every day.

A traumatic injury occurred to a member of the wider Andean community at an SAC dance in April. Her recovery has been miraculous, due primarily to her strength of character. I contacted the family prior to this event and asked if I could pay tribute to her courage. Veronica Tiller is here today to witness her brother, Wes' graduation.

At the time of the accident, an SAC faculty member who was chaperoning the dance showed incredible judgement, patience and fortitude in stabilizing

Veronica immediately after the incident and before the medical authorities arrived. In the opinion of her doctors, this act by Fraser Cowell prevented irreparable damage. The theme of this school year is courage – "that quality of mind or spirit enabling one to meet danger with fearlessness". Veronica and Fraser, would you please come forward to receive Colonel Tilston Awards, the school's award for "courage under fire".

Once again, our graduating class has distinguished themselves in every facet of school life. I congratulate this year's Prefects under the leadership of Head Prefect Adel Ratansi. Those faculty members who work closely with them remark that this group has been the most effective student leaders for many years.

Academically, this class has excelled. The latest report from the University Counselling Office indicates that they have won over US $650,000 in scholarships to U.S. colleges and $353,000 to Canadian Universities. Some highlights – Entrance scholarships of $10,000 or more have been won by Tyler King, Bryan Lin, Johnny Ng, Jang Jik Lee, and Dustin Tsap to Ryerson, University of Toronto, Queen's University and the University of Waterloo respectively. Scott Genin and Vladie Lokshin have won prestigious Excellence Scholarships to Queen's. Scott Giroux and Greg Van de Mark have won major admission scholarships to the University of Ottawa. John Jinho Kim and Justin Oh head off to Carnegie Mellon University with the Rene Descartes, and Engineering International Student Scholarships in their knapsacks. Adam Yates has won three scholarships to Queen's – an Entrance Scholarship, a Residence Entrance Award, and a renewable Entrance Scholarship.

Jon Thomson has won an $80,000 U.S. scholarship over 4 years to Cornell University. Drexel University, Mercyhurst

Grads and their family members stream into the Great Hall where the class presented the Biafran Award to the member of staff meaning the most to their year to William Scoular.

College, Rochester Institute of Technology, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute have attracted Kyle Bergman, Tyson Geick, Michael Kiekebelt, and Christian Morissette, respectively with large financial packages. Would these have anything to do with lacrosse and hockey?

I applaud the accomplishments this school year of our athletic teams. Conference of Independent Schools Athletic Association Champions at the Varsity level in Hockey, Squash, Alpine Skiing, Rugby and Lacrosse. The Varsity Lacrosse team added the Ontario Championships in a lop-sided win on home turf; Varsity Hockey won the triple crown, the MacPherson Tournament, CISAA and Mid-West Prep League championships; and Varsity Rugby also won a thrilling CAIS National Tournament at the start of their season.

Collectively, these victories kept student morale high throughout the year.

Congratulations to the coaches, captains and players for this fantastic athletic record.

I am delighted with the progress of our debaters and public speakers. If there is a more important life skill, I would like to hear of it. At this year's IISPS Competition hosted by St. Andrew's, Ryan Cole earned the right to compete at the World Championships held at Bishops Diocesan College in Capetown, South Africa. Stewart Powell and Radissen Ramoutar narrowly missed the cut to compete. Out of 80 competitors, Ryan finished 9th.

The high calibre IISPS Competition must have motivated our public speakers and debaters, because they followed up later in the year by winning the Junior and Senior Fulford Cup and the Coaches Award for top school out of 21 CIS schools.

Under the direction of our Director of Music, Ms. Sandi Chasson, Director of Piping, Jim McGillivray and Director of Drumming, Major Brian McCue, our diverse Music program has flourished. SAC was, once again, the host school at the CISMFF at Roy Thomson Hall where 58 of our boys thrilled the huge audience with their skill in piping, drumming, jazz, brass and strings. With the music program's growth in prominence, we must find a way to build them a new music facility so that the boys can continue to progress.

Our actors and artists have also had a banner year. Wait until you see the work displayed in The Gallery by the Headmaster's Art Prize winners: Grant Burke and Wes Tiller. William Scoular's production of Cabaret was a blockbuster hit, better, in my opinion, than the version in London – and what great acting in Waiting for Godot by Colin Murphy, Greg Van de Mark, and Will Samson-Doel.

Today, four pillars of the Andrean Community retire.

In St. Andrew's history, only 15 men have served the school as a member of the Board of Directors for 25 years or more. Today marks the final Prize Day as a director for Mr. David Dunlap, Class of 1956, who has served with distinction for 27 years including 11 years as Chairman of the SAC Foundation. Thank you David.

We have honoured the other three who have been key components of the life of the school at a special reception in the Gallery two weeks ago.

Head Librarian Stephen Treasure, Head Nurse Carol Rose-Kudelka and Food Services Manager Mike Hillick collectively have devoted 75 years to the college. Please join me in wishing them a very happy retirement.

The Andrean Legacy Program continues to expand at an astounding pace. This innovative life insurance matching gift program provides Old Boys and parents with a creative way of ensuring the continued success of St. Andrew's College. As of June 2007, Old Boys and parents have generously arranged over $22.7 million in this unique program. For more details, please call: Jim Herder '64 Director of Advancement at 905-727-3178, ext. 237 or jim.herder@sac.on.ca

The Prefects in the Class of 2007 at their final chapel service with Chaplain Bruce Roffey.

The school would not run as smoothly as it does without the dedication of many groups:

Thank you to the Board of Directors for their diligence and wisdom in critical areas of school governance.

Thank you to the Faculty and Administrative Staff for their tireless work on behalf of the boys. Thank you to the Ladies Guild Executive under the capable leadership of Cathy Tait. The accomplishments this year of this dedicated group were numerous, all in aid of the boys. Their contribution of $100,000 to Campus Master Plan II projects has helped "kick start" the next phase of facility improvements. Thank you to the Maintenance, Grounds, Food Service, and Housekeeping Departments for their commitment to excellence. Thank you to the Leadership Team for your support and counsel.

I would be remiss if I didn't choose this opportunity to briefly report on the recent Parent Satisfaction Survey.

As you all know, St. Andrew's conducted an online Parent Satisfaction Survey this past March and heard back from 61% of you (304) – 7% more than our last survey in 2001, and 1% higher than the average Canadian response rate. The objective of this survey was to solicit feedback from our parents as a means to measure St. Andrew's performance both past and present, and strategize and plan for the future.

We contacted our 494 current parents and about 200 parents from the last two graduating years. While we will be sharing with you a more comprehensive report of our findings in the coming months, including the areas for improvement, I wanted to share some highlights with you today and thank you for all of your support

THE 2007 SURVEY INDICATED THAT:

- 84% of you have an overall high satisfaction rate (4 or 5) with St. Andrew's and what we have done for your son;
- You ranked our top 5 greatest strengths as follows: Academic program, Athletics, Leadership Opportunities, Life Preparation and Facilities;
- The most important reasons for choosing St. Andrew's for your son(s) were: Academic program, Athletics, Reputation, University Preparation and Life Preparation; and
- In terms of overall parental perceptions:
 - 81% of you feel the pace of life is just right;
 - 86% of you feel the challenge of the curriculum is just right;
 - 84% of you feel we are successful in achieving our Mission Statement; and
 - 86% of you feel the quality of education is equal to, or better than, that of other independent schools you know.

Ramsey Housemaster and Board member Greg Shields has a firm grip as he shares the Housser Trophy with Ramsey Clan Head Anthony D'Antonio '07.

David Dunlap '56 presents the Macdonald Medal to Iker Lanzagorta '07 from Mexico City. The Macdonald Medal is awarded to the graduating student exhibiting the most distinguished combination of character, leadership, academic success and athletic accomplishment. Iker is the first student from Mexico to win this prestigious award.

SOME EXCERPTS:

"St. Andrew's has been a wonderful place for our son. He has matured and developed into a serious and intellectually stimulated young man. The drama program has been exceptionally good for him." Parents of 4th year grade 12 student

"St. Andrew's has so far surpassed our expectations at all levels. Our family is extremely satisfied with SAC." Parents of a 1st year grade 10 student

"The overall benefits of caring advisors, individual teacher interest, interesting curriculum, great sports, wide variety of extra curricular options... it is the complete package!" Parents of 2nd year grade 7 student

"St. Andrew's offers everything that one could want in a high calibre school. St. Andrew's has taught our son HOW to learn, and he will emerge this year as a "complete man". Thank you for the gift you have given our son." Parents of a 4th year grade 12 student

"St. Andrew's College lives up to its mission statement. We believe it prepares our son to face the world with unique, well-rounded personal and academic skills. The Andrean experience and fellowship, which breeds character and values, is the ultimate strength and gift of the school." Parents of 4th year grade 10 student

YOU HAVE ALSO INFORMED US OF AREAS FOR IMPROVEMENT, INCLUDING:

- › increased food quality and variety;
- › increased academic offerings and additional learning support;
- › increased consistency in discipline; and
- › increased parent communications, to name a few.

Over the coming months we will continue to analyze the data and publish a full report this fall, which will be available on our website. We also plan to address any common themes and incorporate changes into our future strategy and objectives for the school.

Thanks to Board member and past parent Ernest Cheng and his wife Maisy for their dedication and support throughout this entire survey process. A

Mrs. Ann Perrier presents the Thomas A. Hockin Trophy for Middle School Clan Competition to Clan Captains Jonathan Yan, Sonny Atkins and Alex Harris.

Board of Directors Chairman Jeff Chisholm presents the Roy H.M. Lowndes Prize to the student in grade 8 who best excels in studies, games, deportment and character to Stefan Ferraro.

The King Memorial Trophy, for the boy living in Macdonald House who most excels in studies, games, deportment and character, is presented to Andres Arozarena, by David Galajda, Director of Residential Life and Housemaster of Macdonald House.

EXCERPTS FROM ADEL RATANSI'S VALEDICTORY SPEECH JUNE 2007

Looking back on my journey as an Andrian, I can smile and say it was the best it could have been. A combination of amazing friendships and brotherhood, along with great teachers, housemasters and staff, help to create everlasting memories every day. This shows that SAC is not just an ordinary place, it is a unique institution that does not separate its members, but instead it brings everyone closer, to share in all of its wonder.

In the words of Angela Mondou, an inspirational speaker:

You must pursue what interests you, what you love doing, and you will receive the ultimate satisfaction. It is never too late to follow your dream, and turn that dream into reality. The next piece of advice that she gave me was, fake it till you make it. Set a goal for yourself, believe in yourself, have confidence in your abilities and you will achieve it. In the process of achieving greatness you must approach everything with the same enthusiasm and integrity as if it were already achieved.

To my fellow grads:

If each of us could just see the power we have.

If each of us could discover the potential of greatness inside of us.

If each of us could just see what we are capable of doing, what we could change, and what we could create, then in our eyes the world might seem like a very different place. All we need is a little perspective to know who we are and who we might become.

Gentleman, the last six years have been the best years of my life and I am honoured to be graduating with such an amazing, unique, diverse group of people. Thank you for an amazing high school experience and good luck in the future. Remember, Quit ye like men, be strong. A

ADEL RATANSI,
HEAD PREFECT CLASS 2007

Please Remember Us

Consider adding the SAC Foundation to your will, and for memorial gifts in the notice of your passing. Gifts will be permanently recorded in your name for the purpose you designate, or for scholarships and bursaries for deserving students.

This endowed fund was created at the request of the classes of 1956 and 1957 when they celebrated the 50th anniversary of their graduation year.

It is an ongoing tribute to Stan Macfarlane's outstanding contribution to St. Andrew's students over his 35 year teaching career at the school (1947-1982), and was dedicated to him on his 90th birthday in November 2006.

If you would like to add your name to this growing list of donors, please send your gift to the Foundation at: 15800 Yonge Street, Aurora, ON L4G 3H7, or donate online specifying "The Stan Macfarlane Scholarship" at www.sac.on.ca

MANHATTAN OPEN '07

Next year for the 10th we hope to have the best turnout ever – please mark it in your calendar for Friday, June 20, 2008.

THE WEALTHY BARBER REMINDS GRADS WHAT REALLY MATTERS

Best-selling author David Chilton told students at the graduate luncheon in May that a positive outlook and being nice to others is what really matters in life. Oh, and good luck helps too.

According to David, he's had plenty of that. David has accomplished in his words, a "publishing impossible" by selling more than 2 million copies of his book The Wealthy Barber since it was published in 1989. To hear him speak, you can understand why. He is funny, entertaining and genuine. He was able to captivate 116 grade 12 students, their parents, and assorted faculty and staff for more than an hour with his hilarious anecdotes about family dynamics, publishing growing pains, interview stories and general acts of kindness. He concluded his remarks with a reminder to us all that as a society, Canadians could use more optimism in their lives. If "we would approach life as if our glass was 95% full, rather than 50% full we would be much better off."

One of his tips to the students was to "never rely on the experts". According to David, if he had taken the advice of experts along the way, his book would never have been published. Another tip he gave the boys was most Canadians are more than happy to help you and are accessible by phone or email. No matter who you are, you should never be afraid to contact someone you don't know for advice or feedback. He also had some fun comparing new technology to bygone days, especially since the graduating students don't remember much of anything prior to the Internet age.

Sponsored by the St. Andrew's Ladies Guild, this event was an early send off of sorts for the graduating students. Prize Day was still eight weeks away, but this was a day for the boys to be reminded that they make up a very special group – Andreans of the Class of 2007. Wherever they go in this world they will always be remembered, and they will hopefully remember their days at St. Andrew's College with great fondness.

Each grad received an autographed copy of The Wealthy Barber from the Guild, and David personalized as many copies as he could before his departure. Thanks to the Guild for inviting such an inspiring keynote speaker for us all to enjoy. A

The stars and moon shone brightly on April 21st for The Ladies Guild 35th annual Red and White "Moon Dance" Gala. A record breaking 345 guests enjoyed a wonderful evening of auctions, games, signature martinis and dancing to the beat of Timmy and the Jets. A special thank you to our many generous sponsors, lead by Bell Canada and J.J. Barron Realty Inc. whose contributions as lead sponsors played a significant role in the success of the event. The evening was made possible through the commitment of an amazing team of volunteers on the gala committee – a heartfelt thanks to all.

Moon Dance was an overwhelming success raising nearly $115,000 net, the most profitable Red and White gala ever! A

And the Winners Are!

The St. Andrew's College Old Boys Association first held a golf tournament in 1935, with keen competition for the silver trophy presented for low net score by Lyman P. Howe. The first winner was Howard S. Costigane. Notable winners since that time included Donald D. Carrick in 1937 who was later voted runner up as Canada's athlete of the half century [1900-1950] and "Mac" Frost, a longtime great supporter of the College and owner of several golf courses in Ontario who won it in 1966. The Association changed with the times and became the SAC Association, which included parents as well as Old Boys, thus in 1978 another familiar former athlete, Bobby Baun of the Toronto Maple Leafs and father of two old boys, captured the trophy.

Those rather small gatherings have now expanded into a full field of foursomes who compete in a scramble format for the Jim Hamilton Trophy, which has been awarded since 1985 when Jim retired as Executive Director of the SAC Foundation. This year 136 keen golfers attended the event held on a beautiful day at Pheasant Run Golf Course June 18th.

Three teams tied for the low net with the tie being broken by retrogression. Champions for this year are Dave Campbell '85, Paul Keating '84, Steve Keating '87 and Shawn Omstead '85.

Taylor Irving '04 won the longest drive, booming several tee shots so far that his team recorded three eagles! Closest to the pin was Sandy Munro '70.

We would like to thank Association President Mark Etherington '92, Golf Convener Brian McKague '93, and the great group of old boys (including several who had graduated 48 hours earlier), current and past parents, friends of St. Andrew's and faculty who made this day a true celebration of the Andrean spirit.

Hope to see you all next year at Silver Lakes Golf Club on June 17th. Watch for details in your upcoming alumni newsletters and on our SAC website. A

ASSOCIATION MISSION STATEMENT

"Fostering good fellowship among members through reunions and special events."

Family ties play an important part in the life of St. Andrew's College. This is the story of a different kind of "family ties" – the kind you wear.

Of all the many SAC ties, one of the most popular cannot be bought, it is not for sale – it must be earned. That tie is the Old Boys' tie, presented to boys when they graduate.

Twenty of this year's 116 grads already had an Old Boys' tie in the family. It belonged mostly to older brothers, but also to fathers, grandfathers and a great grandfather.

Richard Housser, who graduated this year, is the fifth member of his family to wear an Old Boys' tie. The most recent was his brother John J. who graduated in 2003.

Before that, there was his father, John F. '68, his grandfather John G. '33 and his great grandfather Harry, a student in the school when it opened in September 1899, and a member of the class of 1903.

Four of the 2007 grads have had two brothers precede them. Devon Bean (Allan '03 and Sinclair '05); Colin McCullough (Brendon '03 and Clinton '05); Will Samson-Doel (Eric '03 and Patrick '03) and Luc Swenker (Marc '01 and Eric '03).

Michael Fedorov's grandfather, John Farrer was in the class of 1940 and Dan Poyntz, the grandfather of Adam Yates, was a member of the 1948 class.

It was like father, like son for four grads: Dylan Edminson (David '76); David Miklas (Greg '76); Richard Shouldice Stewart (Peter '74) and Cameron Tait (Ian '73).

The older brothers of nine other grads were given ties within the past few years: Duncan Cole (Sean '05); Scott Genin (Michael '05); Josh Hanson (Mark '05); Graham Hynds (Jeff '05); Robb Kaptyn (Alex '04); Tyler King (Jeremy '04); Matthew Munro (Tyler '06); Adel Ratansi (Faisal '04) and Jon Tozzi (Eric '05).

In all of these cases "the ties that bind" are the ties that they wear! A

KEN RYAN

Family Ties

Whether you are an old boy, past parent, current parent or student – you represent St. Andrew's College in our community and around the globe. When we ask new families how they heard of St. Andrew's, six times out of ten they tell us "by word of mouth" or "through our reputation". For that I would like to say thank you to all of you, because no amount of advertising can replace this type of promotion.

That's not to say we can rest on our laurels. The competition for mission appropriate students has gotten greater over the years, both for boarding and day. More and more independent and private schools are opening each year in York Region alone. Admission staff members travel to: Antigua, Bermuda, Bahamas, Barbados, Cayman Islands, Hong Kong, Jamaica, Mexico, New York, Germany, Trinidad, and all across Canada – which are just a few of the 30 countries our students represent. We work with existing families in each of these locales to promote SAC in our quest for future Andreans.

St. Andrew's College isn't for everyone. The pace of life is swift here, whether you are acting in a FOCUS play, making the winning kick in a rugby game, or performing in the Pipes & Drums Band for 20,000 spectators at a Toronto FC game (or all of the above in a 24 hour period as Jon Tozzi '07 did) – successful boys must embrace our mission statement of developing "the complete man, the well-rounded citizen."

I think Tyler King '07 summarized his seven years as a student very well when he said, "St. Andrew's is a great school. You will receive everything this place has to offer as long as you are willing to give a little of yourself in return. I have enjoyed getting involved everywhere I can, and sure it has been overwhelming at times, but looking back... it has made me who I am today."

This fall we will be offering entrance scholarships to incoming students who demonstrate impressive academic achievement at their current school, as well as interests in athletics and/or other fine abilities in art, drama, music, debating and leadership. In order to qualify, you must also take our SSAT Entrance Scholarship Exam offered on Saturday, October 20th and submit your application by December 31st. Financial Aid is also available to families who qualify, and we continue to accept applications on a rolling admission basis throughout the spring.

Please continue to spread the word about St. Andrew's and contact us at 905-727-3178 ext. 303 or admission@sac.on.ca if you know families you think would be interested in learning more about a St. Andrew's education for their son, or if you are interested in helping to coordinate an Open House reception in your city or town. We look forward to hearing from you! A

ST. ANDREW'S COMMUNITY

Thanks to Alyson Bartlett for six great years as a teacher of Middle School and Upper School English. Alyson and her husband have moved to Ottawa where she will be teaching at Elmwood School, an independent all-girls school.

Randi Berman and her husband Richard are pleased to announce the birth of Grey Maxwell Berman on March 15, 2007. Siblings Molly and Spence are very excited about their little brother's arrival!

Luigi D'ambrosio has rejoined the kitchen staff on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays after sustaining very serious injuries in a car accident the summer of 2005. Welcome back Luigi – it's great to have you back!

Sabrina D'Angelo has been appointed to the position of Assistant Director of Middle School, effective September 1, 2007. She will work closely with Director Mike Hanson overseeing a number of areas, especially Student Life, and will also facilitate the Middle School Council in organizing and planning special events. Sabrina has been with St. Andrew's for six years where she has primarily taught grade 6 Geography and grades 7 & 8 French in the Middle School, and spent one year teaching in the Upper School. Her enthusiasm, caring approach for her students, and strong communication skills will ensure her continued success in making a significant impact on the lives of the boys. When she is not at St. Andrew's, Sabrina helps manage the lives of her own boys: husband Gian, and sons Cole and Maxam in their home in Caledon.

Margaret Kirkby has been appointed Director of Health and Wellness effective July 1, 2007. Marg has been with the St. Andrew's College Health Centre since 1999 and has a very good understanding of the issues that confront the school in the areas of health and wellness. She will report to and work closely with Courtenay Shrimpton, as well as David Galajda, the Housemasters, the Great Hall staff, and the Physical Education and Physiotherapy staff.

Thanks to Maggie Pelc for her four enthusiastic years as a Middle School French and History teacher. She has gone on to teach at Tomken Road Middle School in Mississauga.

Congratulations to Grady Robson for 13 years of wonderful service in the English Department. We wish him well in his future endeavors.

Michael Ruscitti has left SAC to accept the position of Assistant Director of Middle School at Crescent School in Toronto, effective September 2007. Mike impressed the interview team at Crescent with his knowledge of adolescent boys' issues and his diverse experience as a member of St. Andrew's Middle School, where he served as Acting Director for more than a year and also took a year leave to teach in England. Prior to joining SAC's faculty six years ago, Mike taught Middle School for five years in Edmonton. He has been a popular and respected colleague. The Leadership Team, in particular, have appreciated his innovative ideas and his constant sense of humour. We wish Mike, his wife Sarah, and children Aria and Georgina all the best, and look forward to hosting him on campus next for a Crescent-SAC Basketball game!

Dave Stewart was appointed Housemaster of Flavelle House, effective July 2007. Dave will bring enthusiasm and humour to this challenging role, as well as strong administrative and organizational skills. He is the 12th Housemaster in Flavelle House's 81 year history. Dave joined the faculty of the College in 2000 as a Resident Don in Macdonald House. He went on to become Assistant Housemaster in 2001 and was joined in 2003 by his wife Natascia, who is the Admission Coordinator for the school. Natascia and their nearly two year old son Conor will add a lively and supportive family atmosphere to the house, especially come January when the Stewart family is expecting the arrival of their second child. As Head of the History and Social Sciences Department, Dave is passionate about Canadian history and is one of the forces behind the school's annual Battlefield Tour, and has also helped bring the Historica Fair to St. Andrew's for the past two years. Dave will continue to coach U16 football and U16 hockey, while juggling his new full-time job as Housemaster. Prior to moving to Aurora, Dave worked as a Recruitment Officer for his alma mater – Queen's University, traveling around Canada and the Northeastern United States promoting the University. In his spare time, we hope he will continue to be one of St. Andrew's finest ambassadors!

Brian McCue has left the role of Housemaster of Flavelle House after eight years – four as Housemaster and four as Assistant Housemaster under Courtenay Shrimpton. Brian continues as Head of Cadets and Director of Drumming. He and his wife Christine are now living off campus in Aurora.

SPECTACULAR SEASON FOR

Lacrosse

1st Lacrosse 2007 CISAA Champions

"Our teams just keep winning," commented Headmaster Ted Staunton last spring. "For this to happen considering the size of our student body – speaks volumes for our sports program here at St. Andrew's."

2007 Graduates: (l-r) Andrew Baer, Derek Cleary and Colin McCullough reunite at a pre-season CUFLA game.

2007 Graduates proudly display the CISAA trophy: (l-r) Sean Aron, M.J. Kiekelbelt, Will Samson-Doel, Andrew Baer, Derek Cleary, Kyle Bergman, Colin McCullough, Jon Thomson and Tyson Geick (front).

It was a spectacular season for the Saints, ending with an overall record of 23-4 and winning both the CISAA Championship against St. Michael's College 13-4 (for the second straight year in a row) and the OFSAA Championships against All Saints Catholic Secondary School from Whitby with a final score of 11-6.

"This was certainly a challenging season early on," said Greg Reid, 1st Lacrosse Coach and Director of Athletics. "Particularly when we suffered back-to-back loses at a mid-season tournament. But heading into the playoffs, the team had gelled and they were as thrilling to watch as they were to coach. I'm extremely proud of every team member and how they supported each other on and off the field. Every single player contributed to the team's successes."

Congratulations to our graduating seniors, many of whom are playing lacrosse at universities in Canada and the U.S. this year:

Jonathan Thomson,
Cornell University (NCAA Division I);

Kyle Bergman,
Drexel University (NCAA Division I);

Tyson Geick,
Mercyhurst College (NCAA Division II);

M.J. Kiekelbelt,
Rochester Institute of Technology
(NCAA Division III);

Sean Aron, University of Guelph and
Derek Cleary, University of Guelph
(CUFLA – Canadian University Field Lacrosse Association);

Andrew Baer and Colin McCullough,
Wilfrid Laurier University (CUFLA); and
Will Samson-Doel,
University of Ottawa

"The OFSAA championship really was a storybook ending," said Kyle Bergman, who will be playing Division I Lacrosse at Drexel University in Philadelphia this year. "We battled some adversity through the season but at the end of the day we came out on top, and I couldn't have asked for it to end any other way." A

KIM SILLCOX

CINDERELLA SEASON FOR FIRST RUGBY

It was a Cinderella season of close matches in which SAC's First Rugby team came out on top in almost all the games that mattered. They won their second consecutive CAIS Championship against Crescent School winning 28-0, a CISAA Championship prevailing over UCC in a very close game 10-8, and 4th place at OFSAA. Congratulations to a group of excellent athletes who played as a true team.

The CAIS Tournament held at King's-Edgemoor School in Halifax was a fantastic start to the season – but injuries were the story after that. At one point we had six starters sidelined, and it was only the ability of those called to step up that kept us competitive. The season ended with our MVP on the sidelines for the final two games at OFSAA.

It was a very tight league this season and we entered the playoffs from third position. A close fought semi-final match with Appleby saw us come out 5-3 winners – qualifying for a fifth consecutive CISAA Finals and a 3rd consecutive OFSAA entry!

The finals were an equally close and very exciting 60 minutes in which both SAC and UCC defences held tough under huge pressure, but in the end a perfectly placed Cam Tait kick with minutes remaining allowed Zech Miller to score the winner and earn a CISAA Championship!

OFSAA was a fantastic experience in which we upset the #3 Seed from Trenton in a very tough defensive game, and came within one penalty kick of making the finals.

Best of luck to our grads: May your rugby careers be long and glorious, but may you never forget this year. A

When I arrived at St. Andrew's College for orientation day three years ago, seniors were dressed in scarlet uniforms with green kilts and sporrans, guiding clumsy freshmen boys to the right boarding house. After a few months, when I first had a chance to wear the kilt, I was laughing with my friends about the fact that a bunch of men were wearing skirts. On that day, the whole school gathered for Cadet training, and the magnificent Pipes and Drums Band led us to the march. As I marched behind the sounds of beating drums and roaring bagpipes, I suddenly felt my heart leaping up, building to an overwhelming feeling of passion that I had never experienced before.

Without much of a plan, I immediately switched to the bagpiping program. I did not know that my bagpipe teacher, Mr. Jim McGillivray, was one of the world's best professional bagpipers. I did not know that all other bagpipers in the band had been playing for years. To earn a starter position, I had to practice more than anyone else.

Taking advantage of a boarding school, I practiced piping outside during the day, and visited teachers for extra help in the evening. However, the more I advanced with the bagpipe, the more difficult it became, and the higher I set my goals. I had to sacrifice valuable social activities in order to have time to practice. The band practiced daily during cadet training seasons; pipers had to march, align, perform, and follow commands in perfect unison. During the hard times, I thought about living without such an intense commitment, but every time, I chose to stick with it.

Congratulations on a perfect 8-minute precision halftime at the Toronto Football Club's first-ever victory Saturday, May 12, 2007.

Constantly practicing while striving for excellence in all other school activities was truly challenging. But the reward came last May, when our Pipes and Drums Band was invited to perform at the halftime show for the inaugural Toronto FC game against Chicago Fire. Performing for Toronto FC's opening game was definitely a significant accomplishment for a high school band. We were representing Toronto.

When our band marched into the center of the soccer field, 20,000 enthusiastic fans cheered as we were broadcast to millions of televisions worldwide. I was so nervous that my right hand felt paralyzed. My fingers were moving, but I could not sense my bagpipe's chanter. In the middle of the chaos, the only thing I could hear was the sound of my own bagpipe. And for an instant, I was the proudest man alive; my passion was blazing.

On that day, Toronto FC tasted their first victory, and I tasted my own. My sense of purpose became clear; the bagpipe stirred up a passion in me unlike anything else, and I strongly believe that this intense blaze will light me through my future. A

GRANDPARENTS

Join in the Fun

The Middle School held its 5th Annual Arts Day in May featuring 12 local artists who came in for the day to teach their trade to our grade 6, 7 and 8 students.

Each artist brought their own unique style and medium to a classroom for the day, and the boys were able to sign up in advance for their top four choices.

Special guests included Paul Mantrop '87 and Gord Kemp '88, now professional artists and part of the group called drawn onward. Paul focused on landscape painting and Gord taught drawing; Rhonda McNeill, taught the boys how to create online scrapbooks called Computer Photobooks; Katherine Laco, taught the techniques of pointalism drawing; Paula Doyle demonstrated the art of making Ukrainian Eggs; Louise Joiner (wife of faculty member David Joiner) helped the boys make personalized painted chocolate designs; and Raine Davis inspired the boys to make crazy canvas collages.

The students' grandparents were invited to join in the fun for the afternoon and were treated to classroom tours followed by a tea at the Headmaster's home at the end of the school day. Grandparents, parents and aunts and uncles took part in the afternoon event, some of whom had sons who attended St. Andrew's as well. Grandsons were delighted to have their grandparents appear in their classrooms and took great pride in showing off their artwork. A

WHAT IS YOUR ALL-TIME FAVOURITE OR MOST MEMORABLE RECOLLECTION AS A STUDENT AT ST. ANDREW'S?

We would like to start a new segment in The Andrian showcasing funny, poignant, tense, wonderful (you get the idea) moments you remember from your time at St. Andrew's. Former teachers, staff and parents are welcome to submit as well! Please send your thoughts condensed into no more than 250-500 words to:

Kim Sillcox at kim.sillcox@sac.on.ca or by fax at 905.841.6911

1938

Charles Tisdall died on March 24, 2007 at the age of 88. Charles headed his own public relations consulting firm, Tisdall, Clark and Partners in Toronto, which was recognized as one of the major consultancies in North America. Charles was a leader in national and international public relations, and in arts and social services organizations. In 1972 he was named Honourary Consultant to the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts. In 1985 he was the only Canadian named as one of the 40 most outstanding public relations practitioners in the world. Charles was predeceased by his wife Diana and his brother Gerald '42.

1941

William Buchanan died peacefully at home in East Sussex, England on July 17th. Beloved husband of Libby, father to Victoria, Jamie, Lisa, and the late Gray Buchanan. Bill attended SAC from 1936 to 1940. After leaving St. Andrew's, Bill was commissioned in the Royal Canadian Artillery and served throughout the Sicilian and Italian campaigns. After graduating from Oxford University, he worked for the Financial Post, becoming Manager for Eastern Canada. Following this, Bill worked for the Canadian National Railways as General Manager for Europe. In 1979, Bill broke his back in a farming accident and was permanently confined to a wheelchair. Despite this accident, Bill went on to become a Vice-President of CN, then adviser to British Rail in equipping trains and stations for disabled travelers, including the channel tunnel "Eurostars" and Waterloo International. In 1993 Bill was appointed Lieutenant of the Royal Victorian Order in the Queen's New Year's Honours List, having served as H.R.H. The Prince of Wales' adviser on disability. Bill described his years at SAC as "Happy, but an epic of obscurity!" While at SAC he was a lieutenant in the Cadet Corps and on the First Track and Field team.

1953

John Gillberry passed away in London, ON on April 25th. John was born in Callao, Peru on June 22, 1932 and attended St. Andrew's from 1945-1950. While at the school he was active in swimming, boxing and football. Later in life he was an avid sailor and skier. His business career was spent in the advertising field in St. Thomas, ON. He leaves his wife Betty, three children and seven grandchildren.

1954

Gary Roberts passed away on November 25, 2006 in Nassau, Bahamas. His brother Richard Roberts '47 wrote us of his passing. A third brother, Noel '45, died in Nassau in 2002.

1955

Allen Novak Domicelj passed away in Lima, Peru on April 28, 2007. Following three years at St. Andrew's, Allen attended M.I.T. for Engineering and then spent his entire working career in the packaging and bottling business worldwide. He was an innovator who was one of the first people to develop vacuum packaging.

1959

Pedro Novak (Peter) from Lima, Peru, passed away in December 2002. Pedro attended SAC from 1955-59.

1960

Sterling Banfield passed away on February 10, 2007. Sterling attended SAC from 1950-57. His father Edwin Arnold, also deceased, attended SAC from 1918-1925, and his brother Edwin attended in 1965.

1995

Niklas Vahamaki attended St. Andrew's from 1989-1991 as a boarder before moving back to Minnesota. He died in Key West, Florida on April 11, 2006. Niklas was a step-brother to Old Boys Allan Best '92 and Martin Best '95.

FORMER FACULTY

Alan Jackson passed away after a courageous battle with ALS at Southlake Regional Health Centre in Newmarket on May 11, 2007 at the age of 51. Alan started his teaching career at St. Andrew's College in 1977, and he then went on to teach at The Country Day School in King for 18 years starting in 1988. He will be greatly missed by his former students, colleagues and friends who will always remember him as a dedicated and caring teacher, coach and friend. Beloved husband and best friend of Jody (Joanne) Scott Jackson, devoted father of Hart, Emma and Nathan, Alan was a graduate of Thornhill Secondary School and McMaster University, and was a Camp Ponacka alumnus.

Robert Jones died peacefully on Saturday, June 30, 2007 at South Muskoka Memorial Hospital at age 71. Bob was a Master at SAC from 1973-1991 teaching Physical Education, Music and Comparative Religion at the Upper School level. Upon retirement, Bob became a Lay Reader in the Anglican Church and was active in his home church, visiting shut-ins on a regular basis. He was the beloved husband of Eve Jones of Bracebridge, father of Geoffrey '78 and Wendy Jones.

John Macrae died in his 91st year, leaving his wife Helen, to whom he was married for 63 years. John M. known to all as "Bubs" was a Lower School teacher at SAC from 1936-1947. He went on to teach at Lakefield College School where he completed his teaching career and retired some years ago.

FORMER STAFF

Joe Ryba passed away on November 8, 2006. Joe was well known to legions of old boys as he worked in the Great Hall from 1951 until 1988. He arrived in Canada after the Second World War having spent several years in a Polish concentration camp. He landed in Vancouver with little money and did not know a word of English. Old Boys will remember him serving his famous "Joe's buns", which required him to start baking by three in the morning to provide the buns for the midday meal. For many years after his retirement Joe would fill in for special events, especially for reunions when he would see "his boys". Joe leaves his wife Tatiana.

FORMER GOVERNOR

Dr. Bill Laceby passed away May 8, 2007. Bill practised Dentistry in King City for 40 years and was co-founder and Chairman of Laceby Real Estate, a passion he had for 30 years. Bill was a committed volunteer to numerous organizations in the King, Bolton and Nobleton communities. He was a member of the SAC Association Council from 1991-1997 and was its President from 1994-96. During his time on the Association he dedicated his time and efforts to the growth and development of the MacPherson Tournament, especially the planning and execution of the program, and obtaining guest speakers, such as Gordie Howe, through his amazing network of friends and contacts. Bill served a term as a Governor of the School from 1998-2001. He leaves his wife Lynda, who was President of the Ladies Guild in 1994-95, his children Jeff '88 and Lisa Laceby, Kimberly and Scott Gray, Jennifer and Michael Ceconi, Michael '98, and four grandchildren.

Graham Cotter is now writing a weekly column on science and faith for the Coburg Star and Port Hope Guide which is published in the Friday Spirituality section of the newspapers. He writes that he was neither a student of Theology nor Science when he attended St. Andrew's from 1938-42, and while his doctorate is in English (1952), he has been studying Science and Theology for over 25 years.

1947

1949

Henry Feith After decades of litigation Henry received a family property in Prague, Czech Republic in restitution. It is a large building just off the Old Town Square (Stare Mesto) on the "Royal Way" from the Hradcany Castle to the Powder Tower. Originally built in 1380 as a Templar Temple, its three feet wide walls have survived re-incarnations as a hospital, a shelter for women, and at the beginning of the 20th Century, an apartment building. After extensive renovations, Henry and his wife now have a pied-a-terre in the centre of the Medieval section of Prague. Any Andreans wanting to experience a week or more in this city are welcome to get in touch.

1954

In the Queen's New Years Honours List, published December 30, 2006, William de Vallieres Frith was once again recognized for his contributions to Bermuda by being named a Member of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire (M.B.E.). He served on the Corporation of Hamilton for 28 years and was Mayor from 1997-2000. As well as representing Bermuda when foreign dignitaries and members of the Royal family visited the Island, Willie, now 71, was also the Honourary Consular Agent for France for three decades and received France's highest civilian honour, the Legion d'Honneur in 1992. Previously Mr. Frith had been honoured by the French Government with the Chev L'ordre du Merite Nationale in 1976 and the Chev L'ordre du Merite Agricole in 1968. One of the things he is most proud of during his time with the Corporation of Hamilton is his involvement in organizing the Tall Ships 2000 race, when over 50 vessels docked in Bermuda. Upon receiving news of his award Willie noted: "My family has always been involved in public service. I have always believed that you should get involved and do something in the community."

1955

Ian Purdie continues to travel the world and has recently returned from backpacking in Thailand, Laos, China and Japan.

1956

Paul Moore has recently written a book which has received favourable reviews. The book, which compiles a detailed list of all the publications attributed to the eleventh century Byzantine philosopher Michael Psellos, was published by the Pontifical Institute of Mediaeval Studies in Toronto and has been hailed as "a remarkable scholarly achievement". Paul's last teaching responsibilities were for Greek and Latin studies at University of Toronto Schools (UTS).

Robert Claridge and his family (wife Sharmane, daughters Cecily and Robyn, and son Wil) visited and had a tour of SAC on July 25th. Robert and his family reside in Abaco, Bahamas.

Adam Hawley recently celebrated the 10th anniversary of the founding of Bermuda Project Managers Limited. The firm is the first specialist management consultancy in Bermuda. The company provides clients with independent advice and a broad range of project management expertise. From essentially a two man operation at the outset, Adam and fellow director Ian Feathers now employ a staff of 11 people dedicated to helping manage projects, large and small, from initial concept, through construction to completion.

Scott Smith accepted a recognition award in April for J.D. Smith & Sons' outstanding leadership in the Green Logistics initiative from Supply Chain Logistics Canada.

Stephen Wong and his wife Lisa, and two sons, Bryon and Ivan, visited SAC in July and enjoyed meeting with Headmaster Ted Staunton. Stephen and his family reside in Shanghai, China.

Ian Gorwill is an Investment Advisor with Jennings Capital. He lives in Vancouver with his wife Allison and their daughters Madison and Stephanie.

Craig McLean has joined Brink's Canada Limited as Director, Logistics Solutions in Mississauga, ON. He is responsible for designing creative solutions for financial institutions and commercial accounts. Craig is a member of the Board of Directors of Supply Chain Logistics Canada (SCL). He reports that at a recent SCL conference he enjoyed meeting fellow Andreans Scott Smith '81 of J.D. Smith & Sons, George Jackson '81 of Queen's University, and Tom Hussey '85 from the Royal Bank of Canada.

John Coupland travelled from his home in Georgia to present the Craig Mitchell Memorial award at the 2007 Prize Day. He stayed on and joined classmates and friends John Heimbecker and Steve Suarez for a round of golf at the SAC Association Golf Tournament.

Andrew Simpson has been promoting sustainable environmental practices, water and energy conservation, and alternate energy. He recently received a Governor General's award for his long standing commitment and contribution to waste management in Barbados. After conducting community and beach clean-ups for many years, Andrew has recently launched an organization called CARE (Children's Action Rescues Environment) which aims to use a range of activities to "green" mindsets. Andrew recently started using photovoltaic panels to generate much of the electricity used in his home and hopes to order a solar powered vehicle soon. He would especially like to hear from Andreans and other readers who have experiences or ideas which they might like to share. Andrew and Tracey celebrated their tenth anniversary on June 21, 2007. They have a son Luke and a daughter Kelly, and hope to visit Canada this Christmas.

Steve Suarez has completed three terms as a Trustee of the SAC Foundation and has retired from the Board of Trustees. Steve made a terrific contribution to the school and Foundation by way of leading The Andrean Legacy program in its early days. Steve continues with his law practice as a partner with Osler Hoskin and Harcourt LLP in Toronto.

Michael Koopmann has been newly appointed as the Vice President Sales, Europe Division, for Arcplan Information Services (business intelligence software). Michael and his wife Stephanie currently reside in Germany.

Stefano Lizzola is now the President of Premia Equity Management in Toronto. Premia operates primarily in the Canadian market.

David Mahr is now working with Capgemini Canada in Toronto as a Business Development Executive. Capgemini works in partnership with clients to develop business strategies and technologies tailored to their unique requirements.

CLASS OF 2003

This summer, I had a chance to catch up with a number of the members of the Class of 2003 and asked them for details about their hopes and aspirations for life after university. This was the double cohort year with 132 graduates, and for those who chose to apply to schools in Canada (Ontario in particular), there were a few more challenges and obstacles to overcome in the process. As is so often the case with members of our Andrean community, these young men persevered, and are headed to places all over the globe and are doing some pretty amazing things along the way.

The items featuring the Old Boys with whom I spoke are printed in italics.

KIM SILLCOX

Dave Banwell graduated from McGill University with his BComm majoring in Finance and Business.

Allan Bean

"I graduated in May with a BComm and French minor from Mount Allison University and have since moved back to Ontario. I am currently working for Kilcoo Camp running their wilderness tripping program and leading canoe and hiking trips throughout Northern Ontario.

While the double cohort limited my interest in taking Science courses in university due to the restrictions upon the number of OAC courses one could reasonably take, it also gave St. Andrew's a tremendous tool to help us reach our full potential. By doing two years in one we were allowed room to explore in our younger grades while proving to ourselves we could achieve quite a bit at a high level in grade 12. While I am still pursuing courses such as my CSC certification, I have finished my university education for now and would like to travel throughout Canada and abroad in the near future.

St. Andrew's certainly prepared us for university academically as I felt far ahead in many of my university courses. More important it prepared me for life by pushing me to my full potential."

Brent Brandham graduated from Queen's University in May with a Bachelor of Commerce Degree.

Alex Camargo graduated from Yale University with a BA in History. While at Yale, Alex researched and wrote a well-received Senior Essay on "La Violencia" in Columbia and in the process discovered how his great uncle, the late former President Alberto Lleras Camargo, attempted to unite the clashing liberals and conservatives into the unified democracy that Colombia has become. Alex has accepted a position on the Membership Relations staff of the Yale Club of New York City.

Nicholas Caron has completed his BSc (Hons.) in Biology at the University of Ottawa. He has returned to Ottawa to earn a master's degree while pursuing entrance to Medical School.

Andrew Cumming attends the University of Toronto and is studying Chemical Engineering with an Environmental option.

Fraser Fell graduated from Acadia University with a BA (Hons.) in History. He spent the spring term at SAC as Resident Don in Sifton House. Fraser returned to Acadia this fall to pursue his B.Ed. and is looking forward to a teaching career.

Mervyn Frame graduated with an BA (Hons.) in Political Science from Acadia University. He is pursuing a Master's Degree in Intelligence and Strategic Studies at the University of Wales in Aberystwyth, U.K.

Brian Grant graduated from the University of Guelph with a BA (Hons.) with a major in History and a minor in Political Science. He is also a current active member of Peel Regional Police Pipe Band (Grade I Competition Band).

Brian Harvey

"I am happy to say I just got back from my European trip at the end of June after a month and a half of traveling following graduation. Last summer, after studying for a semester at Uppsala University in Sweden, I traveled through Western Europe with Eric Suenker '03 for the month of May and had a great time. So this time around, I backpacked primarily through Eastern Europe.

Believe it or not, I actually ran into Patrick McGrath '03 in Venice, while I was traveling with my sister Brooke. I hadn't seen Pat in over three years because he had been going to university in the U.S., but we picked up right where we left off and it was great to see him again. It seemed like it was just yesterday that we were studying AP Economics together in Mark Service's class, and then, out of the blue, we find ourselves in Europe both having graduated from business school and about to start full-time jobs in the fall.

I will be starting at CARA Operations Ltd. in September as Marketing Manager of one of Cara's five leading branded restaurants. As part of the marketing team, I will be based out of the Cara Home Office in Toronto and will be reporting to one of the Marketing Directors. I can't wait to take part in the new and exciting challenges that await.

Attending St. Andrew's College has no doubt been one of the most beneficial experiences of my life. There isn't a day that goes by that I don't draw on the skills I acquired while attending St. Andrew's. Everywhere I go, I take with me the confidence I gained at SAC and I am proud to call myself an Andrean."

Adam Hoffman earned his Bachelor of Business Administration degree from Wilfrid Laurier University with a major in Finance and a minor in Geography.

John Housser

"After graduating from Acadia University with a BSc in Psychology, I have moved from the far east coast to the far west coast. I've moved my life to Brackendale, BC, to pursue the next step while being able to enjoy some amazing mountain biking, rock climbing, whitewater rafting, and backcountry expeditions. I will continue to work as an outdoor adventure guide with Camp Summit & Outdoor Education Centre, as well as continuing to progress my photography. I have been developing new techniques and applications of panoramic and virtual reality photography in the outdoor adventure realm, and you can find much of my work online as well. I hope to be able to explore the many opportunities for applying the rapidly advancing technology to the outdoor adventure pursuits, to be able to capture, share, and promote the activities that have changed and captured my life. I look forward to exploring some of the ideas and challenges that have been created, and seeing what may lie in the future!"

Austin Hracs graduated from Brock University with a BA (Hons.) with double majors in Geography and Political Science. He has begun his studies this fall at Queen's University in the Geography MA program.

Gordon Hunter graduated with a double major in History and Political Science from the University of Victoria in 2007. Since then he has been working as an intern at the B.C. Legislature, while taking classes in Mandarin Chinese. Gordon hopes that a masters in International Relations will be the next step in his education.

Jeff Johnstone attends business school at Oswego University where he has been on the Dean's List every semester. Jeff plays hockey at Oswego, and helped lead the team to their first Division III NCAA Hockey Championship this year.

He began his law degree this fall at the New York Law School in Manhattan, where he hopes to focus on corporate and commercial law in his second and third year.

Duncan Kluwak attended Gilmour Academy in Cleveland, Ohio for a post-grad year of AP courses after SAC. He received the Headmaster's Award for Academic Excellence and was selected to the Academic All-Star Team of the Mid-West Prep Hockey League. Currently, Duncan is a Senior at the Fu Foundation School of Engineering and Applied Science at Columbia University in New York City. Duncan has been involved in many different activities at Columbia, including the Board of reviewers for Columbia Science review, rowing in the NCAA Division I Heavy Eights Crew his freshmen year, and playing on Columbia's Hockey Team sophomore through senior year (MCH Division of the American College Hockey Association). As well, Duncan has developed a deep appreciation for film and has honed his talent in computer graphic design. In the spring of 2008, he hopes to graduate with a major in Mechanical Engineering and a minor in Economics.

Derrick Kocik graduated from the University of North Dakota – magna cum laude with a BSc Honours in Aeronautics with a major in Commercial Aviation. Derrick holds an FAA Single and Multi-Engine Land Instrument Rating Commercial Pilot License. He also has his Certified Flight Instructor and Certified Flight Instructor Instrument licenses and worked on his Multi-Engine Instructors licence during the summer. Jeremy Lee attends Acadia University and is working to complete his studies.

Soung-Hun Lee

"I graduated about a month ago and will be moving to Lehman Brothers Hong Kong office as a first year Analyst in a Private Equity Group. I am currently going through Lehman's analyst training in NYC, and will be flying to Hong Kong in early August. I didn't have much time off between graduation and training. But it's my very first time in NYC, and I am really enjoying my stay here! My job in Hong Kong will most likely be a one or two year assignment, after which I would like to come back to the States for graduate school.

SAC means a lot to me. I lived there for six years, and most of my teenage memories involve SAC and people I met there. Academically SAC definitely prepared me well for my Neurobiology major at Stanford. I certainly knew more than others in math and science core classes and graduated with 3.94/4.00 grade point average with Honors and Distinction. The work ethic I developed at SAC definitely played a big part. Not just academically, but I feel my well-rounded education and all the experiences I had there made me a better student and person.

I will definitely keep in touch with other Andreans in Hong Kong. Some of the HK friends I made at SAC are still among my best friends, and I would really like to see other SAC graduates I haven't seen for a long time. I would also love to consult students who want to attend college or university in the States."

Michael Lin is in his final year of University of Waterloo's undergraduate Architecture program. While studying, he has worked in Toronto, New York and Taiwan, and will be in Rome for an Academic term this fall. He will be a candidate for a Bachelor of Architecture Studies in the summer of 2008.

Alessandro Lupo continued his hockey career as a Jr. A goalie with the Calgary Royals and Fort McMurray Oil Barrons after completing his education at St. Andrew's. He was traded to Antigonish, Nova Scotia where he continues to study Business Administration and Finance at St. Francis Xavier University.

Drewe MacIver spent a GAP year at St. Anne's in the Lake District in England following graduation. He is presently at Queen's in Pre-Med living with the new love of his life - Mia, the cutest little puppy you have ever seen! His only angst is that he is still not playing football!

Brendon McCullough graduated with his BComm, major in Finance and concentration in Entrepreneurship from McGill University. He also completed the Level 1 CFA exam this past summer and plans to travel the world.

Chris McFarlane graduated from McGill with a BComm. While he was studying, Chris played on the McGill Football Team and also participated in OTA tennis tournaments.

Patrick McGrath

"After graduating from UPenn with a Commerce degree last spring, I traveled to Europe with friends. We rented a sailboat in Greece and sailed around the Greek Isles. From there I went to Amsterdam, Munich, Vienna, Venice, Geneva, Interlaken and Chamonix. It was an absolutely amazing experience and I highly recommend that all students take a month or two after they graduate to do the same. The highlight of the trip was canyoning (rappelling into a canyon and then jumping down waterfalls, swimming through rapids and sliding down rocks until the canyon's end) in the Grimsel Pass just outside of Interlaken, Switzerland. A close second was visiting Dachau, a concentration camp located near Munich.

In July, I started working at the UBS Investment Bank as an analyst in mergers and acquisitions. UBS has played advisory roles in many of the largest mergers and acquisitions deals in the past several years, including providing advisory services to Gillette which was recently purchased by Procter & Gamble for $57 billion.

I would say St. Andrew's definitely prepared me well for university. SAC's "university like" assignments and exams made my transition to university level work much more manageable. To be honest, it was really quite easy. More importantly, however, was that SAC taught me to effectively manage my time at university ensuring that I was able to comprehensively study for all of my courses and simultaneously be involved in and enjoy other activities like rugby and the SFCU, a student run bank of which I was a vice president. These time-management skills I learned at SAC will now be most useful at my current job, as I'll be working an average of 100 hours a week on multiple pitches and mandates at the same time."

Alex McNabb graduated from the University of Guelph with a BA (Hons.) in Psychology. Alex maintained his President's Scholarship for the entire four years, which included one semester as an exchange student in Australia at the University of Canberra. He has accepted a Dalhousie Law Foundation Scholarship for Fall 2007.

Matt Mitchell Since leaving SAC, Matt has had two knee surgeries, and as a result he has not been able to participate in any competitive activities that involve running. The only sport he was permitted to play was hockey, which after three years of Junior Hockey in Ottawa, it was recommended that he stop. He writes that surprisingly he misses playing lacrosse more than hockey.

Charles Ng graduated from the University of Southern California with a BSc in Accounting.

David Nudds attended Lynn University in Florida and is a professional golfer. He played on the Tarheel/Hooters Tour and will go to Qualifying School for his Canadian Card and Asian Card this fall.

Adam Parent

"I graduated from McGill with a BSc in Anatomy and Cell Biology. I am determined to go into medicine and will start my MSc in the same area: Anatomy and Cell Biology at McGill this fall.

My decision to continue my studies as a Masters student was rather easy. A professor in my department is both a mentor and friend and he offered me a position in his laboratory. As the master's studies are an altogether different form of formal education, I was excited to see how the field of science worked from the research side.

How do I think SAC prepared me for life after high school? This is always a very funny question to answer. I think the simple answer is "wonderfully." SAC truly sticks to its mission to develop "the complete man, the well-rounded citizen." The school instills the very fundamentals of what secondary education should be in each of its students. The school demands that the student engage and be an active part of the education, instead of passively letting it go by.

I am in Montreal for the summer, working for McGill University – essentially starting my master's program. Work, work, and more work."

Matthew Posa graduated from Dalhousie in May with a BA in Biology and has been accepted to the Master of Chiropractic program at Macquarie University in Sydney, Australia starting in February 2008.

Jordan Ross graduated from McGill University with his BComm. While at McGill, he played Varsity Football during his first two years and Varsity Rugby for the last two years. Jordan won rookie of the year the first year he played rugby and during his graduating year he co-captained the rugby team, which went on to win the Quebec conference title. Jordan entered Law School at Bond University in Australia this fall.

Eric Samson-Doel graduated with his BA in History from Wilfrid Laurier. While there he served on the board of the History department for three years. Eric is now working towards his Canadian Securities Certificate.

Patrick Samson-Doel graduated from Wilfrid Laurier University with Honours BBA with distinction. He is now working at Alluence Capital Advisors Inc. as an Investment Analyst and hopes to achieve his Chartered Financial Analyst status.

Tyler Smith met Jon Butcher at the CAIS Rugby Tournament in Nova Scotia in April. Tyler played rugby for the past four years at Acadia and was the honoured recipient of the inaugural "Ty Smith Trophy" for sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct on and off the field. He earned his BSc in Environmental Science from Acadia and is now off to the University of Northern British Columbia in Prince George to pursue an MSc in Environmental Science in River Ecology. Tyler sends his regards to everyone at SAC. He's pictured here with Jon in the shirt he wore last time CAIS Rugby was at King's-Edinburgh (and he won!).

Kyle Steeves graduated from Queen's University with a BSc. Kyle played for Queen's Varsity Rugby Team and participated in an exchange to the University of Otago in New Zealand where he also played Rugby. He has been accepted to graduate school at Queen's to study Mathematical Biology.

Alex Tanton graduated from Kenyon College in Ohio with a BA in Philosophy.

Louis-David Lord has recently been awarded Bowdoin's most competitive Fellowship for Neuroscience research. The Paller Fellowship will cover his research expenses for next year, provide him with a substantial stipend, and cover the totality of travel expenses to several conferences all over the country. Louis-David's honors thesis will investigate the effects of steroids on the visual system and their potential impact on social regulation. He was interviewed about his research on CBC Radio in Montreal last spring.

Justin Wong received his LLB (First Class Honours) from the London School of Economics and Political Science, having won a prize for best performance in second year examinations. Justin will now be continuing his legal studies by pursuing a Master of Laws degree (LLM) at the University of Chicago Law School.

Sean Dinsmore has recently signed a semi-pro hockey contract in a Division II league in Finland as a defenseman for the 2007-2008 season. He has received a scholarship to attend Savonia University in Varkaus, Finland this fall.

2006

Spencer Higgs is pleased to have completed his first year of college. After a year away from SAC, Spencer reports that the advantages SAC has given him are more than evident. He is trying to take extra courses to make him feel as challenged as he was in high school. He has decided to major in English and is looking forward to the rest of his college career. After next year Spencer is hoping to transfer to either University of Florida or Florida State University, and possibly pursue a master's degree in the future.

Nick Leslie is a member of the prestigious pipe band Oran Mor (based in Albany, New York), which won the Bridge of Allan pipe band competition early in August. The competition was held near Stirling, Scotland, actually on the grounds below Stirling Castle. The photo is of Alex Douglas '04, who is also a member of the pipe band, and Nick in Stirling, Scotland.

Justin Quinton has transferred from the nano technology program at Waterloo to Memorial University in St. John's to study biochemistry.

The mark -30- above is a familiar one for editors, reporters and columnists everywhere. In the days when type was “set” for newspapers and magazines -30- was typed at the bottom of the editorial, news item, or personal column to indicate the end of the piece. It would then be sent to the composing room to be set in lead type – in the earliest days by hand and later by linotype machine operators.

The significance of using it in this heading is that this is my final column as Editor of The Andean.

The years seem to have flown since I joined the College in 1985, and I will complete my stint as Director of Advancement for St. Andrew's and President of the SAC Foundation next June.

I am proud of the evolution of The Andean, but I could not have done it without the whole-hearted support of Bob Bedard, Ted Staunton and Board members, past and present. Both Headmasters gave me the freedom, encouragement, latitude and budget to make it work.

One of our goals is to keep our alumni, parents, past parents and other friends of the school informed of the vast variety of programs we offer current students. Without trying to be all things to all people, we have attempted to vary our editorial content to appeal to most readers, most of the time.

We have attempted to create a magazine that you will keep on your coffee table, that you will read cover to cover, and that you will pass on to your neighbours as a way of recommending that they send their son(s) to St. Andrew's College.

Over the years the news section has expanded. I think this issue contains the largest section of alumni news ever. Early in my career a senior Old Boy told me “while I know very few of the names anymore, I read every news item, as, for me, the measure of the school is how its graduates have done and what they are currently doing.”

The class of 2003 was the largest graduating class in our history – 132 strong – and, as they have now been out of SAC for four years, for this issue we put an emphasis on gathering news of their university graduations and beyond.

For those of you who might wonder why the Editor's column is on the last page, I have noticed that some old boys tend to open the magazine from the back to read the news of their classmates first – so hopefully they read my column along the way!

As I sign off there are so many people to thank that I fear naming some and not others, but I would be remiss in not trying.

In the early years especially, Board members David Dunlap '56, David Rea '53 and John Housser '68 were very supportive and ideal advisors who were certainly not shy with their opinions!

Internally, Sandra Scott was with me all the way for the first 19 years and her attention to detail and grammar skills were hugely important. Ken Ryan, and, before him, Douglas Worling '50 were patient and creative in providing material from the school's archives, now known as The Class of 1954 Archives, which strengthened the publication. Jim McGillivray has provided wonderful editorial content. His feature stories and alumni profiles have been simply outstanding. Thanks too, to the many teachers who have cheerfully contributed articles and photographs, with a special tip of the hat to Steve Kimmerer and Mark Service.

Victoria Foley and her firm belladonna communications have been the creative design genius for all 23 years I have been Editor and her understanding of and care for the school are self evident.

Finally, my wife Gail has put in hundreds of hours critiquing and proof reading and offering suggestions and advice. She has been my most important focus group.

On November 1st 2007, Kim Sillcox, Director of Communications for St. Andrew's, will add the role of Editor of The Andean. I know you will all join me in wishing Kim every success and will help provide her with the support that so many of you have so kindly given me over the years. A
